

Industry Advisory Group Annual Meeting Summary
May 14, 2019

Background

- OBO's Industry Advisor Group (IAG) is a chartered federal advisory committee to OBO, governed under the Federal Advisory Committee Act. The IAG serves the U.S. government in a solely advisory capacity concerning industry and academia's latest concepts, methods, best practices, innovations, and ideas related to OBO's mission to provide safe, secure, functional, and resilient facilities that represent the U.S. government to the host nation and support our staff in the achievement of U.S. foreign policy objectives. These facilities represent American values and the best in American architecture, engineering, technology, sustainability, art, culture, and construction execution.
- The group comes together annually in Washington, D.C. to discuss specific issues related to the program issues at hand. These annual meetings are open to the public and include international guests. In addition to attending the annual meeting, IAG members meet throughout the year with OBO on property management, engineering, design, construction, operations and other related project and program reviews and evaluations.
- Comprised of thirty-four noted professionals drawn from real estate, urban design, landscape architecture, architecture, historic preservation, interior design, graphic design, construction, engineering, and facilities management, members serve a two-year term. The IAG professionals range from internationally known architects, engineers, designers, construction contractors to those with emerging practices or working in specialized fields.

Summary

- The annual public meeting included twenty-seven Industry Advisory Group (IAG) members in attendance.
- The IAG and OBO met for the annual public session that included an overview of OBO's design reviews from the past year, including successes, challenges, and industry participation. Following that readout, OBO Director Tad Davis reviewed the Strategic Priorities of the organization. A moderated panel on site reuse, intervention and renovation included architects that represented related challenges on their respective projects. Ann Beha was awarded the inaugural Industry Advisory Group Honor Award before the meeting was adjourned.
